

The Promise

By: TMSG

It was a scorching morning in Ancient Egypt and Seth woke up when his brother yelled that he was thirsty and wanted water. He told his brother he would go get some water.

Instead of doing what he promised, Seth walked down the hallway all cranky and yelled to his mom “Water!”. His mom gave him a glass of cold, refreshing water and Seth gulped it down. He came back to his room and gave his brother the empty glass. His brother told Seth that he was a liar and did not keep his promises.

Seth’s city was very big and each family lived in a pyramid. Some pyramids were big and some were small.

It was Halloween and Seth wore his costume to school. Halloween was very special because all the kids would go treasure-treating. Each family would hand out treasures to the treasure treaters. At school, Seth’s friend Net asked if he could borrow Seth’s sandstick for an assignment that Net needed to do later. Seth agreed to lend it to him. But as time passed Seth never gave Net his sandstick. This is how Seth behaved to everyone and mostly his friends Net, Lapis, and Adom. He would always make promises and never keep them.

Later that day after school the group of friends went treasure treating to each pyramid. When they passed the third pyramid Adom slipped and his treasure fell all over the sand. Adom was upset because he had lost a diamond. Adom asked Seth if he could have one of his 5 diamonds and Seth agreed. But again he broke his promise.

The next weekend Net, Lapis, and Adom met and decided to teach Seth a lesson about breaking promises. Their idea was to lock Seth in a creepy, scary basement and when he would ask for food, water or to get out - they would agree but then break their promise. Just like he always breaks his promises.

The following day they asked Seth if he wanted to come to Lapis's pyramid.

When Seth got there Net tossed Seth into the basement and locked the door.

Seth yelled loudly but no one responded. Seth was trapped in the basement alone.

Seth looked around and saw a very creepy basement. Everything was chipped and rusty. It was pitch black and Seth could barely see. He heard a noise behind him. Seth turned around and saw a spider the size of a desk which had eyes the color of lava. The spider's eyes turned black. Then he saw a mummy. He looked at the walls and there was a piece of rusty gold in the shape of a skeleton. Seth was scared, he ran up the stairs and saw a small crack of light. He yelled on the top of his lungs asking his friends to let him out.

"Sure," Adom replied but he did not open the door.

Seth went to sleep that night nervously.

The next morning Seth woke up very hungry. He yelled to his friends for food. Net never gave Seth his food.

A couple hours later Seth was very thirsty. He yelled to his friends for a glass of water. He expected it but it never came.

He thought to himself "What's going on". He later remembered that he never gave Net his sandstick, he never gave Adom his diamond, and many more. They were trying to teach him a lesson. Seth slams the door so hard his friends sprint to the basement door. Seth tells them that he is sorry for breaking his promises and that he will always keep his promises. Lapis told Seth that the basement was much nicer than what it looked like. Lapis just decorated it. The friends lived a happy life. In fact, Seth never broke a promise again.
